SleepStory

Good morning, Maya

How did you sleep?

Tell me in your own words. I'll fill in the details for your doctor.

Your watch: asleep about 11:50 pm to 6:50 am

Tap and talk for about 15 seconds

For example: "Went to bed around 11, took an hour to fall asleep, woke up twice."

Rather not talk? Answer in 3 taps

Listening...

Talk naturally. You can stop any time.

I went to bed around eleven, but it took me like an hour to fall asleep. Woke up twice, once around three, and I was lying awake for maybe forty minutes. Got up at quarter past seven. Feeling pretty wiped out.

Was yesterday different from usual?

Your usual day: 2 coffees before noon, alcohol rarely, a walk most days.

No, it was a normal day

Or pick what was different

- Coffee after 2 pm
- Alcohol
- Stressful day
- Napped
- Exercised
- Screens in bed
- Felt unwell
- Took sleep medication

Saved. Thanks, Maya.

One rough night doesn't define your sleep. Your doctor will see the pattern over weeks,. not single nights.

5 of your last 7 mornings

Doctor visit on Thursday, December 3. Your Sleep Snapshot already has 29 nights.

Next check-in tomorrow at 7:30 am

| Time in bed | 8 h 10 | 7 h 45 |
| Sleep efficiency | 65% | 79% |
| Poor nights per week | 6.1 | 4.2 |

Poor night: sleep efficiency under 85%.

Sleep efficiency by night

Medication

Zopiclone 7.5 mg, no dose change

| 4 | 3 | 2 |
|---|---|---|
| nights/wk Sep | nights/wk Oct | nights/wk Nov |

Patient reports groggy mornings after taking it.

Screening

PHQ-2 = 3 (positive). Consider PHQ-9 or a mood assessment.

STOP-BANG 2 of 8: low apnea risk

No drowsy driving reported

No restless legs symptoms reported

No breathing alerts from watch

What seems linked to bad nights

Racing thoughts were the most common reason for waking (14 of 31 nights with 2+ awakenings).

After alcohol (9 nights) she took about 20 min longer to fall asleep.

Late coffee (6 nights): no clear difference.

Associations from small numbers of nights, not proof of cause.

Watch vs diary, last 4 weeks

| 6 h 55 | 6 h 05 |
|---|---|
| watch total sleep | diary total sleep |

50 min gap. Consumer watches often overestimate sleep in insomnia; a large gap may suggest sleep-state misperception.

In her words

"The nights I lie awake are almost always the ones when I'm going over work in my head."

Wants to discuss: Can I come off the sleeping pill? Is there a sleep program I could try?
